Our summary

The Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board is seeking a registered landscape architect and supporting specialists to help update the long-range plan for Minnehaha Regional Park. The resulting document should map a twenty to thirty year direction that serves neighborhood residents and visitors from farther away, while preparing the park for climate pressures and water quality concerns. The work must draw on historical research and reflect the site's national register listings, its significance to Dakota and other Indigenous communities, and the Works Progress Administration infrastructure still present.
